REPORT CARDS TO ARRIVE MID-SEPTEMBER; COMPONENT GRADE DELAY SOUGHT

HANNAH
A State Board of Education committee voted Monday to recommend delaying elements of the state report cards, which are also set to roll out later than usual this fall because of the harsh winter’s effect on spring testing. Chris Woolard, director of accountability for the Ohio Department of Education (ODE), told board members Monday report cards are expected in mid-September, rather than the typical late August release date. He attributed the delay to the extended window schools were given this year to administer Ohio Achievement Assessments because a glut of snow days cut into instructional time for preparing students.

NEW CUYAHOGA COUNTY HEADQUARTERS NOW OPEN; ED FITZGERALD SAYS IT SYMBOLIZES DEPARTURE FROM COUNTY’S CORRUPT PAST

NORTHEAST OHIO MEDIA GROUP
Cuyahoga County’s new headquarters is now open for business. County officials on Tuesday afternoon held an opening ceremony for the eight-story, 220,000 square-foot building. It replaces the county’s former headquarters, which was demolished earlier this year to make way for a planned convention center hotel. County Executive Ed FitzGerald highlighted the new headquarters’ location: the former Ameritrust complex, which was among the subjects of the 2007 corruption investigation that foreshadowed the county government reform approved by voters in 2010.

OHIO BUDGET/POLITICS

OHIO MADE RIGHT CHOICE ON 'RELEASED TIME' SCHOOL PROGRAM: STATE REP. JEFF MCCLAIN  THE CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER

Guest columnist State Rep. Jeff McClain, R-Upper Sandusky, represents Ohio House District 87.  He writes in support of House Bill 171, which was recently signed into law.  It allows students release time to attend faith-based education classes and receive up to two units of high school education credit.

STRICKLAND TO HELP LEAD NEW ADVOCACY GROUP FOR PUBLIC EDUCATION  HANNAH

Former Ohio Gov. Ted Strickland will be one of the co-chairs for a new public education advocacy group announced this weekend at the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) national convention.  Donna Brazile, a prominent Democratic strategist, announced the formation of Democrats for Public Education at the convention Sunday.  Brazile, Strickland and former Michigan Gov. Jennifer Granholm will lead the group.  In announcing the group, Brazile said schools need to focus on "educating character, teaching skills, creating an environment of dialogue and inquiry, establishing a community from a diversity of cultures, nurturing potential and empowering people in the pursuit of happiness."

BATCHELDER NOT INTERCEDING IN SPEAKER RACE; SEES QUICK START FOR SB310 PANEL  HANNAH

While House Speaker William Batchelder (R-Medina) played a role in setting up a meeting to try to settle the question of his successor, he said Wednesday he’s not taking sides in the ongoing race and is not concerned with how its continuation will affect work in the lame-duck session.  Reps. Cliff Rosenberger (R-Clarksville) and Ron Amstutz (R-Wooster), two leading contenders, sat down recently to show their hands, and afterward Amstutz agreed to support Rosenberger and said their combined forces comprise a majority of the House GOP caucus.  But Rep. Jim Butler (R-Dayton) vowed to press on with his own candidacy.  Batchelder said it would be "very presumptuous" to insert himself into the race.

OHIO DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION/STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

STATE SCHOOL BOARD HEARS COMPLAINTS ON DAYTON CHARTER  HANNAH
Former teachers of a Dayton charter school brought serious allegations ranging from test manipulation to ethnic favoritism to sexual conduct between students Tuesday to the State Board of Education, which plans to investigate. Five ex-teachers of the Horizon Science Academy high school in Dayton addressed the board during its public comment period, while two others and a former student submitted written statements. They described a school administration that intimidated staff to discourage questioning or official complaints about various problems, from leaky roofs to school officials reviewing students' standardized test forms to an incident involving students performing oral sex on one another.

GIFTED INDICATOR, COMPONENT GRADE DELAY OK'D; STATE BOARD MOVES SEPTEMBER MEETING HANNAH
The State Board of Education finalized plans Tuesday for how it tracks schools' progress on gifted education while delaying other elements of state report cards and considering how to involve itself in efforts to update the Ohio Constitution. The board also voted to move its next meeting from Sept. 8-9 to Sept. 15-16, so it will have authority to act under provisions of the mid-biennium review, which takes effect a few days after the original meeting date. The board voted unanimously to approve requirements for the gifted indicator, a measure on the state report cards that gauges schools' efforts to identify and serve gifted students. The requirements to meet the indicator for the 2014-2015 academic year, adopted by the Accountability Committee in June, include getting a C or above on gifted value added; 115 or above on the gifted performance index; and 40 or above on gifted inputs. The index and input requirements are set to increase incrementally in the following two school years.

EARLY LEARNING

EARLY EDUCATION SHOULD BE INTEGRAL PART OF ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS, FOUNDATION SAYS WASHINGTON POST
Preschool programs should be integral parts of elementary schools with comparable funding levels and school hours; child-care professionals should be trained as teachers, not babysitters; and state data systems should include information about early education, according to a blueprint for speeding up improvements in early education. The report published Wednesday by the non-partisan New America Foundation includes wide-ranging policy recommendations for the future of early learning, spanning academic standards, teacher training, assessments, funding and evaluations that emphasize how well teachers interact with children.

REPORT URGES HIGH-QUALITY TEACHING AND SUSTAINABLE FUNDING FOR EARLY EDUCATION EDUCATION WEEK
Fixing the birth-through-grade 3 care and education system requires streamlining disparate programs and funding sources, and a renewed focus on high-quality interactions between young children and the adults around them, says a report issued Tuesday by the Washington-based New America Foundation. The policy brief, "Beyond Subprime Learning: Accelerating Progress in Early Education," includes eight overarching recommendations, and within each are steps that can be taken by federal and state lawmakers, school districts, teachers, and principals.

COLLEGE AND CAREER READINESS

REPORT: COLLEGE ASPIRATIONS FALL SHORT OF REALITY FOR MANY LOW-INCOME STUDENTS EDUCATION WEEK
Many low-income students have high aspirations when it comes to college. However, they often don't have the means or preparation to enroll and succeed. New research out July 17 from ACT Inc. and the National Council for Community and Education Partnerships finds that while 95 percent of ACT-tested students from low-income families said they wish to pursue some type of postsecondary education, only 59 percent enroll in college right after high school. Overall, 87 percent of all ACT-tested graduates indicate they want to go to college and 71 percent of them do.
