

Powerful Classroom Practices for Disrupting Poverty

October 1, 2019

Given the right tools and information, high poverty schools can become high performing. This training will work through a framework that will assist you in dismantling the high poverty school to creating a framework for action that will lead to a high performing school. The framework will address school leadership, safe supportive learning environments and student achievement.

Targeted audience: teachers, special education teachers, assistant superintendents, curriculum directors, central office personnel.
