

Keys to Student Learning: Enhancing Executive Functioning Skills

Presented by: Mary Lou Fasko, School Psychologist & Consultant

As parents and educators, our goal is to help students develop independent learning skills, so they can grow to become positive and productive adults. An essential component of this growth is the development of executive functioning skills - skills found in the "command" center of the brain, which help to:

- Use Working Memory Effectively
- Plan and Organize
- Initiate and Carry Out Purposeful Activities
- Exert Self-Control, and
- Demonstrate Emotional Adjustment
