The Family Engagement Academy Hybrid

Dr. Tammy Campbell is a national speaker and recently retired superintendent of schools in the Federal Way (WA) Public Schools. Tammy has over 20 years of experience as an educator, principal, executive director, and leader in the University of Washington Center for Educational Leadership. Dr. Campbell began her career in education as a classroom teacher and brings over 25 years of experience in education through her roles as a superintendent, executive director of teaching and learning, executive director of instructional programs, assistant superintendent of teaching and learning, and as education faculty.

Participants attending this academy will:

- Gain a sense of what authentic and inclusive family engagement looks like.
- Understand the connection between parent engagement, belonging and academics.
- Learn about designing and implementing parent/family academies.
- Gain an understanding of superintendent and principal family advisories.
- Delve into the barriers to family engagement and how to mitigate these barriers.
- Unpack practical examples of authentic family/parent engagement, both traditional and non-traditional, at the school and district level.

Cost: $75.00

Includes materials and lunch on day four.
