

Personal Competencies

June 25, 2018

Students bring attitudes, aptitudes and behaviors to the learning experience. Personal competencies – cognitive, metacognitive, motivational, social/emotional – help students coordinate and manage new learning.” In Personal Competencies: The Something Else for Student Success, participants 1) learn the four personal competencies, 2) describe their own personal competencies, 3) explain how personal competencies impact learning and are enhanced through instruction, 4) describe how they will incorporate instruction and techniques that will enhance the personal competencies of their students. Audience: Grade 1-5 Teachers
