
IMPLEMENTATION BOOK STUDY:

The Writing Revolution

by Judith Hochman and Natalie Wexler

The Writing Revolution (TWR) provides a clear method of instruction that you can use no matter what subject or grade level you teach. The model, also known as The Hochman Method, has demonstrated, over and over, that it can turn weak writers into strong communicators by focusing on specific techniques that match their needs and by providing them with targeted feedback.

Books will be provided to all participants. Contact Hours: 15

Register here: <https://forms.gle/ARH1We318nbn5USS8>

Target Audience:

At least two teachers assigned to one building (could be more; could be an instructional coach and a classroom teacher). District Curriculum Leaders, Building Principals could also attend with their teachers if they plan to implement this school wide. This book study will be one in which teachers will be asked to take back and try the practice in their classroom and come back to share.

Schedule:

Discussions will be held once every month virtually via zoom from 3:30- 4:30.

2021-2022 School Year
September 9th
October 14th
November 11th
December 9th
January 20th
February 24th

Participants must attend ALL sessions, implement the book activities in their classroom and come back to share.

Graduate Credits Available through Ashland University
$225.00 - 1 Semester

Information will be available at Book Study