

STRUGGLING READER SIMULATION

Walk in their Shoes

How does it feel to be an individual who struggles to read?
Join us for a Struggling Reader Simulation opportunity, where participants will experience the challenges struggling readers confront when performing language-related tasks.

Participants are guided through six learning tasks commonly encountered in the classroom or workplace.

The purpose of this hands-on professional learning session is to improve understanding and encourage the use of evidence-based instructional teaching practices.

This 1-day learning session consists of a 2-hour struggling reader simulation and debrief in the morning, and an afternoon of discussion about effectively supporting the academic needs of struggling readers.
