In It Together Strengthening our Partnership by Scaling Up Student Interactions

Teaching effectively in diverse classrooms and building strong family-school partnerships has become more complex than ever - particularly when our student and family communities represent changing cultural, linguistic, racial, and economic experiences that are distinct from our own. Dr. Debbie Zacarian, co-author of "In It Together: How Student, Family & Community Partnerships Advance Engagement & Achievement in Diverse Classrooms" will be sharing ways that we can strengthen our partnerships with students and families to:

- Build coalitions of support around student learning and engagement
- Develop positive and active relationships with students, their families and their communities
- Foster positive, reciprocal partnerships
- Promote peer-to-peer relationship building
- Support inclusive practices for the entire community of students and families

Audience: District or building leaders such as Superintendent/Assistant Superintendent, Director of Curriculum, Director of Pupil Personnel/Special Education, Principals and Teacher Leaders. Team attendance is suggested.
